

Dear Parents/carers

There has been a real buzz in school this week with the children showing an attention to detail which has been great to see. It has been lovely to see the younger children using their phonics to good effect to sound out words in addition to using tricky words they have learnt.

This week the children in FS have been learning all about weight. They braved the weather on Wednesday to make use of the big balancing scales in the playground and they weighed the fruit and vegetables that Mrs Scott kindly brought in for us. The children also turned themselves into human weighing scales to make predictions before they weighed them and they found some surprising results!

Caracaras have been busy making a rain-o-meter that they have set up to measure how much it rains.

The Year 2's have also been busy explaining their reasoning when working on arrays and multiplication in maths.

This week in science years 3 & 4 have been modelling the digestive system. They had fun learning all about the different functions of the digestive system.

In English they have been writing their own poems based on 'An Emotional Menagerie'. They chose an emotion, then thought of an animal that reminds of that emotion, they then wrote a poem about how they display that emotion and their final stanza was how they could overcome that emotion.

Meadowlarks have been very creative in art this week as we continue to look at influences from South America, including Frida Kahlo. Here are some pictures of us with our clay sculptures of South American monkeys.
